Sept. 4th Waynesville Taildraggers Flyin and pancake breakfast. Come on out to a grass strip and experience aviation as it really is. Lots of antiques, classics and even some old airplanes. Get there early for the pancakes. Good photo ops and an opportunity to do some antique shopping in Waynesville and Lebanon. Step back in time and do something different.

Sept 24 Hanover/Madison In. Fly in of antique aircraft

at Lee Bottom Airport and the same weekend is the Madison Art Fair. Great opportunity to try some ground to flight photos as well as buy some good art work. Plan on spending the weekend. Book now because the rooms go fast. Contact Steve Statkus

TAPPER REPORT:

I received an email communication from Tapper recently. He has been out of the country on government business and will remain so for some undetermined amount of time. His duties remain a closely guarded secret however I can share with you that he is in a desert climate and has established contact with the indigenous population. In fact he is living with a group of nomadic herdsman some distance from a large population center.

Tapper tells me in addition to his Nikon equipment that he is "packing." I'm unsure what "packing" means. He also as established a local photography club that specializes in nature photography. Currently the club is engaged in an inner-club competition seeking to photograph the national bird, which is the Sand Flea. Extreme close up lenses are being sought for the camera of choice, the 110 Kodak Instamatic.

In addition to his email I received numerous attachments which were some samples of the clubs' photo efforts. It seems that the attachments were censored and the contents deemed crucial to National Security and therefore the images were removed from the attachments. (Photos of sand fleas, national security, confiscation of toe-nail clippers and cork screws at the security check points; sounds consistent....ed.) However, Tapper did manage to encrypt a copy of his girl friend Fatima. I was informed that the encryption would allow opening the attachment only after the message was sent to another email address. Therefore I could not see the image before I sent it out to you members. Check out the attachment. Ed.
